Cabins are available at Parker Dam and Treasure Lake, so why not take a winter vacation, settle in on your bucket seat, and see what bites?

GEOCACHING

Geocaching in winter is a great way to experience the outdoors, see wildlife in a different way, and learn as well. Parker Dam State Park holds geocaching classes, activities and searches. Hone your newly acquired skills on the S.B. Elliott Civilian Conservation Corps historic geocache. For more information go to <http://www.geocaching.com>

CROSS COUNTRY SKIING

There are 4 Rails to Trails in Clearfield County perfect for cross county skiing. The 73-mile Quehanna Trail is spectacular in winter, as are the trails at Curwensville lake and the Clearfield to Grampian trail.

SLEDDING

Nothing beats the thrill of old-fashioned sledding down a hill!

Treasure Lake and Parker Dam State Park have designated sled/tubing hills, or ask a local to reveal their favorite place to race to the bottom?

WILDLIFE WATCHING

Winter is a perfect time to view plant and wildlife and see colors and habits unique to the season. It's a great opportunity to watch a lone Bald Eagle silently soar in a snow filled sky, to follow the tracks of a rabbit or the coyote chasing him, and see a bull elk without the camouflage of fall foliage. Moshannon State Forest, Wopsononock Natural Area, and the Quehanna Wild Area are great places to start your wildlife watching adventure.

PENNSYLVANIA WILDS OUTDOOR DISCOVERY MAP

The Pennsylvania Wilds Outdoor Discovery Map is jam-packed with tons of outdoor activity suggestions no matter the season. Find out where to ski, hike, camp, go horseback riding and more. Use it to plan an exciting next winter getaway. The map is available by calling 1-800-577-2029.

SNOW SHOETING

"If you can walk, you can snowshoe" Snowshoes allow the outdoorsman to explore winter terrain in places where cross-country skis can't go. Wopsononock Natural Area, the Quehanna Wild Area and Moshannon State Forest are three great places to hike in winter solitude. Snow Shoeing also has the added benefit of a great aerobic workout, keeping your body in shape for spring.

ROUGHING IT

Outdoor die-hards do not have to go to Colorado for winter backpacking, do it right here? Whether day-hiking or backpacking, winter enthusiasts will find the Back Woods of this part of the Pennsylvania Wilds as exciting and rugged as their more famous counterparts in the west. Be sure to have adequate gear and a "safe plan" in case of extreme weather patterns, and tell someone your travel plans in case of emergency.
